HISTORY

Located atop the historic Graybar Building in Midtown Manhattan, the Flight Deck is Pride Global's private event space. Featuring newly renovated open-concept conference rooms and event spaces with unparalleled views of Midtown East and the Chrysler Building, the penthouse offers an ideal setting for everything from private networking events and corporate seminars to art exhibitions and video shoots.

Opened in 1927 and designated an official city landmark in 2016, the Graybar Building first served as the headquarters for the Graybar Electric Company. The 30-story office building blends Art Deco and Byzantine-style aesthetics, serving as an integral part of Grand Central Terminal. New Yorkers at the time considered the building impossibly massive. It's a living piece of the city's history—one available to experience for your next event.

Under the stewardship of Pride Global, the Flight Deck has been designed to offer quintessential New York City charm with an open-plan design suitable for multiple configurations. The original tenant's fireplaces and Vermont Verde marble floors, as well as the corkboard tiles in the library, offer an intimate look back at the luxury of the old city. Meanwhile, modern amenities allow the space to host up to 150 standing guests in comfort and style.
